➤ Choice Flower Seeds. ➤

WE have again harvested a large crop of choice flower seeds. They are far superior to what you ordinarily buy. We probably grow more flower seed and in greater variety than all the other Seedsmen of New York State combined. We are the only growers in this section of the state. Some varieties which do not mature seeds well here are grown for us by the best European growers. Nearly all other Seedsmen buy of Jobbing houses who get the cheapest seeds, regardless of quality. Our seeds are worth more than most others. We aim to sell for less.

GENERAL CULTURE NOTES

ANNUALS, all plants which bloom first season from seeds and then die—Tender annuals will not stand frost. This is the largest and most desirable class of flowers, including among its choicest varieties Asters, Balsams, Nasturtiums, Phlox, Petunia, Verbena, Zinnias, etc. Seed generally should be sown early in Spring as possible, either in boxes or pans in the house or well prepared beds outside, and when large enough transplant to where they are to grow. Soil should be mellow, cultivated deeply and thoroughly, kept free from weeds and made very rich with plenty of well rotted manure or other fertilizer. Some seeds, like Portulacca will not start till the ground is thoroughly warm in early Summer.

PERENNIALS, these rarely blossom the first season, simply producing plants which blossom the second season and live on from year to year, such as Hollyhocks, Pansies, Sweet Williams, etc. They may be grown in a bed till fall and then transplanted to borders or beds where they are to remain. Soil for these should be enriched with manure or coarse litter. During winter tender perennials must be kept in house or well protected outside according as they require.

BIENNIALS, produce plants first season which blossom, mature seeds and die the second season, such as Canterbury Bell, Digitalis, etc. They require about the same treatment as perennials, and like them are often benefited by a slight covering of Evergreen boughs in Winter and Spring; these should hold the snow and keep sunshine off, but not smother the plants.

It is only necessary in ordering Flower Seeds to write the number preceeding the variety you want. We can fill the order as well from the number as when you write the entire name.
